

You lied to me

by G. Smith & Ravena Frommelt

1 / 2

VERSE 1:

You promised me you would never break a single promise
But in the end, it all ended like it did before
You said we were friends and you'd never cause me any heartache
You lied to me

You told me once that there's not a thing you wouldn't tell me
I told you twice that I hang on every word you say
I didn't know when you told me I was one of many
You lied to me

CHORUS:

You said "Don't worry, love
My heart has had enough
There is no room for you"

And I said "Same for me"
We didn't want to see
It simply wasn't true

I said "Don't worry, dear
I will not disappear"
Now I'm so far away

My armor full of rust
Next time I will not trust
The words I want to say

VERSE 2:

Time after time, I have lost myself in one-way romance
And what I tried is to stay away from what attracts
But when you claimed that you wouldn't fall for something jumpy
You lied to me

I guess I thought, "Maybe this is not the time for thinking"
It felt so right, how come now we've got so little left?
We both got hurt by a thing that felt so much like healing
You lied to me

CHORUS:

I said "Don't worry, love
My heart has had enough
There is no room for you"

And you said "Same for me"
We didn't want to see
It simply wasn't true

We said "Don't worry, dear
I will not disappear"
Now we're so far away

My armor full of rust
Next time I will not trust
The words I want to say

BRIDGE:

One summer together
One summer was all we really had
We should have known better
We should have foreseen it would feel so bad

I'm sorry I hurt you
It hurts that I hurt you so much
I thought I'd desert you
I thought it'd be only my skin that you'd touch

VERSE 3:

When we broke up, you explained to me your love had faded
As it turned out, you just left to end my misery
It isn't fair, I can take care of my own protection
You lied to me

You say that now you love someone else and you are happy
But in your eyes I can see that neither one is true
Your smile is fake and our hearts still beat in sync, I know it
You lied to me

CHORUS:

You said "Don't worry, love
My heart has had enough
There is no room for you"

And you said "Same for me"
We didn't want to see
It simply wasn't true

I said "Don't worry, dear
I will not disappear"
Now I'm so far away

My armor full of rust
Next time I will not trust
The words I want to say
